ART & SCIENCE FORUM

INTRODUCTION

For the first time, Berlin Science Week introduces a second location: the ART & SCIENCE FORUM.

Located in Holzmarkt 25's beautiful urban village by the waterfront, the FORUM is dedicated to the dialogue between art and science. It offers a unique atmosphere to come together, connect with like-minded people, and experience the sciences and art beyond their traditional disciplinary boundaries.

"Creative Science, Precise Art" will put a spotlight on the fruitful interactions between artistic practice and scientific rigor and how this can create new ways of knowing and understanding for scientists, artists, and the public.

FORMATS

From 1-10 November, the FORUM will host science-inspired performances, pop-up formats, temporary exhibitions and artistic shows, culminating in a “Science-of-Party” on the final day.

A set of indoor and outdoor spaces ranging from elegant to cozy are available for your immersive and creative formats, installations, and interventions around our topic “Creative Science, Precise Art”.

Join us in building a new space for exchange and discovery!

AUDIENCES

The FORUM brings together local, national and international artists, scientists, and research institutions to present their work at the intersection of art and science to show how both fields can enrich each other.

All events are open to the public and are aimed at art or science enthusiasts, as well as individuals with a particular interest in the connection between art and science.

The FORUM will be a place to experience science and art that makes us laugh, cry, awe, marvel and wonder.

We want our visitors to immerse themselves in a great festival experience, to acquire connections and expand their knowledge.

We are open to any creative suggestions that can contribute to this experience. Get in touch and let's make it happen!
